REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

RACINE, Wis., July 25, 1881.

There will be a convention representing the Republican party of Wisconsin, at Madison, on Wednesday, the twenty-first day of September, at noon, to nominate a State ticket consisting of candidates for Governor and other State officers to be supported by the party at the coming November election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention. Each Senate and Assembly district is entitled to two delegates to be selected in the usual manner.

1st Dist.	T. D. WEEKS	Whitewater
	H. PALMER	Janesville.
2d Dist.	J. H. KEYES	Watertown.
	P. L. SPOONER, JR.	Madison.
3d Dist.	J. H. WAGGONER	Richland Center.
	E. BOWEN	Brodhead.
4th Dist.	J. R. BRIGHAM	Milwaukee.
	L. F. FRISBY	West Bend.
5th Dist.	CHAS. LULLING	Manitowoc.
	G. W. CARTER	Fond du Lac.
6th Dist.	JAMES H. FOSTER	Koro.
	L. B. SOLE	Green Bay.
7th Dist.	HENRY COUSINS	Eau Claire.
	F. A. HUSHER	La Crosse.
8th Dist.	S. W. HUNT	Menominee.
	H. O. FAIRCHILD	Marinette.

R. H. BAKER, Chairman, Racine.

This is a year when the Republicans propose to go in solid for harmony and a heavy vote.

At a garden party given at Saratoga a few days ago, the value of the diamonds worn was two million dollars, and less than half a dozen ladies had the greater part of the jewelry.

Senator Sawyer will not have anything to do with any clique which attempts to force a nominee on the Republican State convention. He is eminently sound in proposing to keep clear of rings.

The President is still in a critical condition. There possibly is a gleam of hope, but those who are in a position to know have virtually given up all hope of his recovery. From the latest reports the best information which can be obtained is that he is no worse.

Chicago is discussing the question how to prevent the carrying of concealed weapons. Judging from the number of bloody assaults and murders committed there, it seems to be a more important question how to keep weapons concealed,—concealed so snugly that they can never be found for use.

A contractor, building a Memphis elevator saw fit to remove a foreman, whereupon over one hundred of his men quit work on the building. It will soon get so that an employer himself will be liable to be discharged by his employes without warning. It's the poor bosses that ought to strike.

The greatest attraction at the Iowa State fair will be the horse race between Miss Nellie Curtiss, of Topeka, Kansas, and Miss Minnie Pinnco, of Colorado. The Purse is $3,000, and the distance to be run is fifteen miles. Miss Curtiss is now training six horses on the Des Moines track for her use in the race.

A portion of what few Smiths there are in the country will have a reunion in Mark Smith's grove, in Pennsylvania, on Thursday. It will be a novel scence. The Smiths will go there flushed with pride at the old familiar name, and with big appetites. For a few days the cities will be relieved of a considerable population, but "just think of the fences around Mark Smith's grove."

The Ecumenical Methodist conference which begins in London next week and to which Rev. Dr. Huntley, of this State, is a delegate, will be one of the most interesting and important religious gatherings held since the days of the Wesleys. The various denominations of Methodism number over 4,000,000 actual communicants, and the Methodist population is computed at 18,000,000. The members of the conference number 400, half of whom represent the British and continental Methodism, and half the churches in the United States and Canada. The conference is composed of lay and clerical delegates in equal proportions. Its main object will be to devise means for prosecuting foreign work so as to result in the greatest economy and efficiency; to increase the moral and evangelical power of common Methodism, and to secure the more speedy conversion of the world.

There is some prospect that the Russian government will make a demand for the assassin and Nihilist, Leo Hartmann. If that demand is made the next question will be, "Will the United States government turn the murderer over to the Russian authorities?" There may be some doubt about it, possibly some refusal on a very technical point, but there is a general demand that the criminal shall be given up to justice. It would be a sad commentary on our civilization and intelligence to shield one of the most heartless assassins of the day. It would be equally as bad to refuse to give him up as it would be for the Russian government to protect Guiteau should he manage to escape to that country to seek refuge. No foreign country has been truer to the United States, especially during the great civil war, than Russia, and to give her murderous outlaws and assassins protection and a home, would be nothing less than a shameless outrage on justice. Let Russia make the demand and let us see of what stuff this government is made.

Wisconsin papers say that although a full set of State officers must be elected in that State in November there is hardly any talk yet about politics. What little there is takes a singular turn, indicative of the languid interest of the people in the coming canvass. Eight State officers are to be chosen. Now, there happen to be just eight congressional districts in the State, and this coincidence has powerfully affected the intellects of some of the small politicians, who have broken out in a demand that the nominations be distributed fairly, so that each district can get one. The sensible Republicans of Wisconsin refuse to get elated this question. When the time comes they will no doubt select the best men from among the aspirants for State officers without the aid of the congressional districts. They evidently think there is such a thing as running the claims of locality into the ground.

The above is from the New York Tribune, and it shows how little that paper knows about politics in Wisconsin. There is no indication of a languid interest of the people in the coming canvass, and there is already a good deal of talk about politics. The Tribune folks must have been reading some sleepy newspaper which does not usually wake up till after the battle is over, and then manage to get on the side that has won. Besides that, there is evidently some one who has got the locality question on the brain. Suppose the Republican convention shall make up a ticket of eight good men, one from each congressional district, what harm would there be in that? The more evenly these nominations are distributed the more just will be the work of the convention. It is not well to sacrifice everything to locality, neither is it well to cry down an attempt at a fair geographical distribution of the ticket when all things else are equal.

DISTINGUISHED WIDOWS.

Women Who Have Lived on the Memories of Happy Conubiality.

New York Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

The late distinguished preacher E. H. Chapin bequeathed his entire estate to his wife. It is but a short time since the will was proved, and now that wife is laid by his side. Such close propinquity in death union is very rare, the most striking instance being in the Greeleys and the Bennetts. Horace Greeley died six weeks after his wife, and Mrs. James Gordon Bennett was not much longer separated from her husband. Both of these distinguished editors died the same year (1872), and both closed their eyes in a demented condition. Greeley was frenzied by the tremendous mental conflicts consequent upon his unfortunate political situation, while Bennett was in a condition of senile weakness. Mrs. Chapin leaves an estate estimated at $100,000 to two sons, one of whom is a clerk in a dry goods house, while the other is a reputable physician. Speaking of Chapin, it need hardly be said that he was one of the most favored of the New York clergy. As a preacher and lecturer he reached wide distinction, and yet how rapidly he is fading into oblivion. His pulpit is filled by an able preacher, and his name is only recalled by the death of his widow. This shows how quickly even men of note pass both out of sight and out of memory.

Speak of widowhood which in the above instance was so brief, some cases notve occured in this city of extraduray duration. Mrs. Alexander Hamilton survived her husband fifty-one years. Had her life been prolonged three additional years she would have reached a full centuary. The inscription on the stone which marks her grave is a model of simplicity, and reads thus: "Eliza, daughter of Philip Schuyler, widow of Alexander Hamilton; born at Albany August 9, 1757; died November 6, 1854; interred here." The above is displayed in ten lines, but I have copied it in a compact manner. Another prolonged instance was that of Mrs. Captain James Lawrence, widow of the ill-fated Captain of the Chesapeake. She was 25 at the time of her husband's death (being seven years his junior) and she survived him fifty-two years, being 77 at the time of her death. On the other hand Mrs. Washington (widow of our first President) survived the latter less than three years. Queen Victora, however, has been in this bereaved condition for twenty years. One of the most striking and interesting cases of widowhood in British records is found in Mrs. Garrick. She was 55 at the time of her husband's death, and survived him forty-three years thus reaching the extraordinary age of 98. The longevity in this case is the more striking when one recalls the remarks she made to Dr. Johnson as they gazed at her husbands portrait, "that death was now the most agreeable thought." Mrs. Garrick lived through the most remarkable changes the British drama ever witnessed. Her stage memories included Barton Booth, then Garrick himself, then the Kembles and Mrs. Siddons, then George Frederick Cooke, Edmund Kean, and Matthews, the comedian—certainly an extraordinary range of experience. In literature, her life embraced such names as Goldsmith, Miss Burney, Johnson, Mrs. Barbauld, Gibbon, Boswell, Edmund Burke, Sheridan, Keats, Burns, Shelley, and even Byron.

Frank Bardal, North Bennett Street Buffalo, says: "I have tried your SPRING BLOSSOM as a family medicine, and have never come across anything to do me so much good in so short a time in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia and derangement of the stomach; I constantly recommend it." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents. Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

Daniel Woods, an Indianapolis scissors-grinder, 104 years old but hale and hearty still, loves to tell how he went from Nova Scotia, where he was born, to England, to serve under the Duke of Wellington in all his campaigns. He took part in forty battles and skirmishes, including Waterloo. During his long service he recived 132 sword cuts, a sabre stab in the eye, and eleven pistol and gunshot wounds. Since his return to America he has lived in Montreal, St. Albans, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Indianapolis. He has had seventeen children, of whom the eldest survivor is eighty nine, and the youngest, by a second wife, twenty-three years old. This is the story which Daniel Woods tells, and if he can go glibly through it without changing color he ought to abandon scissors-grinding and take up diplomacy.

No Matter What Happens.

You may rest assured that you are safe in being speedily cured by Thomas' Eclectric Oil in all cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, etc. One trial only is necessary to prove its efficacy.

THE PRESIDENT.

Special to the Gazette.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Aug. 24, 8:30 a. m.—The President passed a very good night, waking at longer intervals than during several nights past. He continues to take liquid food by mouth with more relish and in such quantity that enemata will be suspended for the present. No change has yet been observed in parotid swelling. The other symptoms quite as favorable as yesterday pulse 100; temperature 18; respiration 19.

GLEAMS OF HOPE.

Signs of Encouragement in the President's Condition—Remarks from the Cabinet Officers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—There is an unmistakable sign of encouragement, however slight, this evening, on account of the less urgent symptoms in the President's case. Nothing like confidence has been restored, and hope cast down so often rallies more reluctantly each time, but there is a rather more cheerful view of the possibilities taken to-night than for some days past.

All the cabinet members were at the White House till after 10 o'clock discussing the President's condition and hearing what the physicians had to say about it. Those gentlemen have a very unsatisfactory way of simply comparing each day with its predecessor, and that appears sometimes to leave the members of the cabinet of as much in doubt as to the patients actual condition as the outside world. There is a difference between the actual and comparative condition the patient seems more important to inquirers than to the physicians.

Attorney-General MacVeagh, who has been on the despondent side of the case for the past three weeks by his own admission, looked very little less gloomy to-night, although he said he understood from the physicians that there was an indication of improvement. Postmaster General James, who, with Secretary Kirkwood, have been the hopeful ones through the darkest hours, said that he was encouraged, "although," he said, "you know I have always looked on the bright side of the case."

Secretary Blaine was writing some dispatches, and your correspondent asked him what tone he was giving them. He said: "I am sending some messages to private parties, simply, and I only say the symptoms are more encouraging, that is all." Mr Blaine looked very sad.

General Swaim entered Secretary Brown's office at about 9:30 to-night and said that the President thus far was doing well and sleeping at intervals as well as usual. He predicted a good night and a more favorable bulletin to-morrow morning.

A story was in circulation to-day to the effect that Secretary Blaine's dismal dispatch to Lowell last night was based upon what Dr. Bliss said when called into the cabinet room and asked to make a formal statement of his opinion of the case. This report was vigorously denied by the cabinet, several of them stating that Dr. Bliss had never been asked to make an official statement of the President's condition.

At 10 o'clock the White House was closed to the public, with a brighter view of the case prevailing than for some days.

TOUCHING SYMPATHY.

A British Mother's Anxiety for President Garfield.

LONDON, Aug. 23—To show how wide and deep is the sympathy for the President I send the following letter, with its homely but very kindly recommendations:

"I watch with much anxiety the accounts of the suffering President. Would it be wise to give him pieces of ice to stay the sickness, and has the simple thing, a baked apple, been tried, given in spoonfuls? I have given it in cases of cholera, cancer of the stomach, delirium from fever, etc."

The letter is signed "A Mother." I should add that the letter is in a neat, ladylike hand and on half-mourning paper This is only one of a great number received.

THE CHICAGO RUMOR.

The Rumored "Call" of Vice President Arthur to Washington Emphatically Denied.

WASHINGTON, August 23.—A rumor reached here from Chicago and New York simultaneously, at a late hour last night that the cabinet had decided that the time had come when the question of the President's inability under the constitution could no longer be denied, and that Arthur had been sent for and Blaine had offered his resignation. The cabinet members had been seen at 10 o'clock at the White House by most of the correspondents, and nothing of the kind appeared to be in the air, and a denial was prepared on general principles until, as if by magic, the story received confirmation from the East, and the "row" was in a state of ferment at once. To begin with, it was believed that if true, the cabinet might feel warranted in evading the question, and the positive assurance from one of them did not convey that degree of conviction that it might, as it might be hard to separate facts from diplomacy. To add to the seriousness of the matter, it was known that yesterday the President's condition had been considered so serious that it was not improbable that action had then been taken that the situation to-day would not have suggested, and a story had been in circulation early in the day to the effect that the cabinet met last night. This had been in terms denied, but the last report gave no life to the canard.

An investigation of the report as to Arthur's call to Washington to assume the duties of President ad interim warrants the denial of the story, as being entirely without foundation. A cabinet officer put it so strong to-night as to affirm that the question of the President's inability had not even been broached, so far as he knew, or thought of. He declared the report to be but the outgrowth of the feverish imagination of the uneasy public, naturally in a mood to magnify every act and word into sensational importance. He said the country might rest easy in the conviction that no sensational coup d'etat would be sprung upon the people, and that nothing would be done without public discussion and approval.

STEWART'S BODY.

An Unsuccessful Search in Cypress Hill Cemetery.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—The latest search for the body of A. T. Stewart, like those before it, has ended in nothing. Cypress Hill has been rooted up in vain. The cobblestones have been "reaped," but nothing more. The mysterious picture appears to have been a fraud perpetrated by somebody. The mysterous lady is not found. The awful suspicion arises that perhaps she does not exist. The mysterious workman vanished into the limbs of the common place long ago. It is possible that the mysterious glintings of dark lanters seen by the workmen in their search were only concrete and everyday lightning bugs. This atmosphere of doubt and suspicion is oppressive. Perhaps the picture on the walls of the mysterious detectives office and the carpets on his mysterious floor are not so elegant, and perhaps—dreadful thought—the detective is not so quiet, though he may be as shrewd as some credulous newspapers have represented. Perhaps some evil-minded persons will go so far as to question his sincerity in declaring that he was not "after reward of dollars and cents," because there was something "higher and better in this case." It may console him in the midst of such misrepresentation that his feelings will not be wounded by getting what he was not "after."

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be wrong and even wicked for clergymen or other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article, made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them."

REV. ——, Washington, D. C.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 23—The latest accounts of the elections, minutely verified, show that 547 elections were held; 483 deputies were elected, and 64 second ballots were necessary. The 483 members comprise 37 Monarchists, 42 Bonapartists, and 404 Republicans. Of the latter, 34 belong to the Left Center, 157 to the Left, 187 to Republican Union, and 25 to the extreme Left. Republican gain, 68, and loss 101; Monarchists gain, 11, and loss 18; Bonapartist gain, 3, and loss 40. The Republican gain includes 18 seats, formerly belonging to Monarchists, 28 to the Bonapartists, and 12 in the new electoral districts.

LAND GRANT SOLD.

MADISON, Aug. 23.—It is understood in official circles here that the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad company have sold their land grant, given for building the northwestern division to a syndicate of New York capitalists. Ira W. Bird, one of the commissioners of the former mortgage land company, states that their interest in the land grant has been bought up for $160,000. The Omaha company, according to the records in the treasurer's office, owned on the first of August nearly two hundred thousand acres along the line of the northwest division, valued at from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

HARTMANN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to-day announced a rumor that the Russian government have decided to request the extradition of Hartmann. At the same time it was mentioned that the Russian press was censuring the United States for harboring criminals, and being generally a lawless country. Hartmann could not be found to-day, but a friend of his said that the news was not unexpected. "We had information of this some time ago," he added. "In fact, Hartmann went to Canada on the strength of such information. His going there was not a mere whim, but was the result of certain information. In fact, notwithstanding what Mr. Blaine afterward said, the published remarks of Assistant-Secretary Hitt could not be considered as anything else than an invitation to the Russian government to ask Hartmann's extradition."

Prof Harris' Radical Cure

FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY

SOLD IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

AND SPERMATORRHŒA.

A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organs—those wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, etc., etc., and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in neat boxes, of three sizes, No. 1, (enough to last a month,) $3; No. 2, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure, unless in severe cases,) $5; No. 3, (lasting over three months, will clear emissions and restore vigor in the worst cases) $7. Sent by mail, sealed, in plain wrappers. Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

Send for Sealed Descriptive Pamphlets giving Anatomical Illustrations and Testimony, which will convince the most skeptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fit for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sold ONLY by

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

IN THE GARDEN.

The birds and bees and butterflies
Are revelling together,
Among the pinks and mignonette,
This blessed summer weather.

The busy bees—they ask no leave—
Are gathering their honey,
And all of them are working hard,
As people work for money.

The butterflies do nothing more—
The happy little things—
But fly about the flower-beds,
To show their brilliant wings.

The robin and the humming-bird
Are busy with each other,
And run about the garden go,
And mother goes with brother.

The robin has a voice that fills
Our weary souls with song;
The humming-bird, he does his best
In humming all day long.

O bees and birds and butterflies,
In gardens you'll find room
All long as this green earth shall stand,
And long as flowers shall bloom.

CATHIE'S STORY.

Cathie Brown's Aunt Cathie, for whom she was named, used often to tell her that once, at least, in everybody's life, something happened "just like a story."

Cathie like to believe this, but one day she said, quite cheerily: "Why, Aunt, I don't know; everything has been commonplace so long that it seems good to me, like the old faces and places."

"Ah, my dear," said Aunt Cathie, "that contented heart of yours is a blessing; but something will happen to you one of these days."

Cathie lived on a lonely country road. Her father was a farmer, whom hard fortune had followed for many a year. Three sons, older than Cathie, were buried in the country burying-ground beyond the hill. Farmer Brown and his wife were getting on in years; and, although they had begun at last to make head slowly against the current of adversity that had set so long against them, the habits of hard labor and the strictest economy clung to them still. They owned their farm, and Cathie was their only child; but, beyond sending her to school in summer and winter, and allowing her the open space from the front door to the road for a flower garden, they felt that they could afford her no "privileges."

Her dresses were of the cheapest material, her hair was always braided down her back in the same simple fashion, her shoes were coarse and thick, and she had no ribbons, no jewelry, no trinkets of any kind. But Cathie did not care much for such things. The desire of her heart was to give. Oh, the dreams she used to dream of the blessedness of giving! A mine of money would not have satisfied her longings to give and give. She might not have been in every instance a wise giver, if her dreams had come true; but she used to lie awake o' nights, and plan by the hour, how, and where, and to whom she would give, if a fortune should fall to her. And nobody should ever know where the good gifts would come from. That would be half the joy of it: to have her bounty descend, shower-like, upon the poor and needy, as if it came direct from heavenly places.

Her father and mother gave to the minister, they visited the sick in the neighborhood, and fed the tramps; but Cathie had never had a cent of money to give away—never in her whole life—nothing but flowers and berries, and willing little services, and these seemed pitifully small in her eyes. Oh, to give freely, royally, unreservedly! how happy she would be, if she could do that!

Aunt Catharine was a great comfort to her namesake. She was poor, like all of Cathie's people, but she loved flowers and birds, and all beautiful things, as warmly as did little Cathie herself; and she brought rare bulbs, and roots, and seeds, and slips, and much homely cheer, to the child.

Cathie's flower garden was sweet the summer through. Indeed, from March to December, from crocuses to frost-flowers, something bright and beautiful beamed up at Cathie from the ground. There was nothing like her flowers for miles around. They were the pride and wonder of the neighborhood. And among them Cathie toiled, when she was not at school or helping her mother. Yet all this beauty was the result of much patient work and faithful care.

"Now, if I were only a boy," she said to Aunt Cathie in one of their talks, "I should coax father to let me raise a piece of wheat, or potatoes, and sell them; and then I should have some money of my own."

"What do you want with money, Cathie?" asked her mother, who happened to hear her. Cathie blushed, but did not answer immediately.

"Don't you have all you want to eat and to wear, my daughter?"

"Yes, mother, I don't want a thing for myself."

"Nor I, neither, dear. Let us not be getting ambitious and discontented, because we are poor."

Alas! Cathie thought of some ambitious, discontented daughters that she knew, and contrasted them with little Cathie.

About this time, Cathie was cherishing one of her dreams—too sweet ever to be realized, she felt, but which did her good to keep it in her heart.

Oscar Gray, a lame boy who lived near, her faithful friend, and a scholar of real promise, was hungering for books and struggling manfully to earn them. He was so proud that nobody dared offer him aid, and so poor, that, at times, his utmost efforts seemed hopeless to those who did not realize the unconquerable energy that was in him. He had fallen into a way of confiding his pet hopes and dreams to his little neighbor, partly because he knew that she was as poor as himself, and by no possibility could help him, and partly because he knew that a secret with her was safe. Then, too, she was such an intelligent, warm-hearted little soul, that it comforted him much to talk with her.

He was now pursuing a certain line of study in natural history, and had come to "a dead-lock," as he expressed it to Cathie, for want of ten dollars' worth of books. Now, if she could only bestow those books upon Oscar, in such a way that he would never guess who gave them, how happy she would be! She could not help planning, and brooding over it, although in her sober "common-sense moments," as she called them, she had no hope of ever bringing it about.

"If I were only a boy!" she would think to herself, as she weeded and spaded and fluttered about among her lovely flowers. "Now, I have worked as hard for you, dear flowers, as a boy works in his wheat-patch, but you are only sweet and beautiful; you do not 'pay.'" And then she would smile at her mercenary thoughts. As the summer deepened, the garden grew in beauty hour by hour, until it seemed as if every twig and stalk bore all the bloom and sweetness it could hold, and the bees and humming-birds held high carnival there every day.

One day, just after the noon meal, Cathie was washing dishes in the back kitchen, farthest from the road, when, all at once, a great commotion seemed to fill the air about her. She felt a heavy, rumbling jar that shook the house; hoarse bellowings, wild shouts, and the barking of dogs mingled in the thundering din that was rolling nearer as she listened. She ran through to the front door with her towel in her hand, and saw, in a great dust-cloud, a drove of at least a hundred cattle tearing along down the road. She ran for her father, but he had gone to the field. Her flower-pot sloped from the door to the road, unfenced. Nearly every week large droves of cattle went past from up-country down to the distant market, and the drovers always stationed boys and dogs ahead at the unprotected places, while the herds marched by. But a panic had seized upon this drove, and, before help could arrive, the frantic animals had surrounded the house, trampled every green thing into the dust, and rushed on and away like an avalanche.

Cathie stood among the ruins with a face of despair; and her mother was standing behind her speechless with dismay, when the owner of the drove came rattling up in his wagon. The cattle were at that moment careering over a distant hill, the drovers still far behind them; but he leaped from his cart and came up to Cathie.

"Why, little girl, if this isn't a pity!" he exclaimed, in a voice of such compassion and sympathy that Cathie hid her face in the dish-towel and sobbed aloud.

"Now, don't cry, dear!" he begged. "I saw, when I went up the other day, what a pretty sight your posies were; and here I've been the means of spoilin' 'em. Money can't replace 'em this year, but there's ten dollars, and I'm mighty sorry, besides." And he placed a bill in her hand.

"Oh, no, no!" sobbed Cathie. "You couldn't help it; nobody was to blame." And she held out the money. But he was mounting his wagon and wiping the moisture from his tired face, with his eyes on the distant cloud of dust.

"You keep that money, little girl. It's small recompense," he said, shaking his head emphatically; and he was off and away before she could speak again.

Cathie dried her eyes and looked at the bill in astonishment.

"Oh, mother!" she cried, suddenly. "May I do just what I want to with this?"

"Why, yes, dear," said her mother: "why shouldn't you? And don't feel badly about the flowers; they'll grow again."

"But, mother, are you sure that you are willing for me to—to—give this away?"

"Give it away? Well, it's your own money, Cathie. I am sure your father will be willing for you to do what you choose with the first money you ever had. And you have worked hard for your flowers, Cathie; we all know that."

"And, mother"—Cathie kept on, eagerly—"I shall want you and father to promise that you will never tell anybody that I got this money." Her cheeks were bright, her eyes glowing. She had forgotten her flowers.

"We will do whatever you wish, my daughter, about this money. It is right that we should. But, sometime, you'll tell mother about it?"

"I will tell you this very minute, mother!" And she did.

So much toward the realization of her dream! And now new difficulties arose. She dared not buy the books, for Oscar knew that she alone was aware of his need. She could think of no way of sending the money to him that would not cause him to think she had begged for him, or made his wants known. He might burn it in pride and shame if he could not find the giver. She thought of catching one of his tame doves and tying the money under its wing; but he would know then that it was sent as a gift to him. Cathie was puzzled, but she kept on planning, and at last she decided that there was but one way. She must manage so that he would seem to find the money.

There were difficulties connected with this method, also, which she did not foresee; but she laid her plans carefully and carried them out.

One day, when she saw him coming up the road, and knew that he was going to the library in the village beyond, she ran swiftly out at the opposite side of the house, through the orchard, and down into the hollow, a quarter of a mile beyond. Here was a little evergreen thicket, with a brush fence on the edge of the road. She placed the bill in the hard, beaten track in full view, scrambled back over the fence, and awaited his coming with an anxious heart. What if somebody else should come along and discover the money before him?

When, at last, he came limping into the hollow on his crutch, her heart was beating so hard that she felt as if it could be heard.

He saw the money—few things escaped his sight—stopped and picked it up, and stood looking at it for some time, with his back to Cathie. Then he put it in his pocket and started back toward home. This was a surprise to her, and she knew that he would call at the house to tell her what he had found. What could she do? She could not follow immediately without being seen. The only way was to wait until he had gone into the house, and then run back the way he had come as fast as she could.

She entered as demurely as was possible under the circumstances.

Her hair was roughened, her dress torn, and her eyes were shining with suppressed excitement, to be sure; but she bore herself with remarkable calmness, as her mother afterward assured her.

Oscar came forward eagerly from talking with her mother.

"See, Cathie," he said, "I have found ten dollars!"

"Oh, I am so glad!" she cried, clasping her hands.

"But I must find the owner, Cathie," he answered gravely, looking at her almost reproachfully, she thought.

"Oh, you never will, I know, Oscar. It is yours—yours to keep and—and buy books with, or whatever you wish."

Mrs. Brown was trembling at Cathie's eagerness, but she dared not say an encouraging word to Oscar for conscience' sake. She saw more clearly than charity-blind Cathie how Oscar was looking at the matter.

The boy grew graver and graver as he looked at his little friend. He could not understand the change in her.

"I shall find the owner, Cathie," was all he said, as he went away.

"Oh, mother, he will keep it perhaps until he dies, if he doesn't find the owner. What shall we do?" cried Cathie. And the mother could not think of anything to do that seemed likely to set matters straight.

A whole long month had passed away—it had seemed a year, to Cathie—and still Oscar was pushing his efforts to find the owner of the lost money. He had become convinced that no one in the village, nor in the neighborhood where he lived, had lost it.

At last, he said one day to Cathie:

"It might have been that cattle-buyer, Cathie; who knows? He handles a pile of money in a year. I shall ask him when he goes up again."

Cathie's cheek blanched, and she caught her breath to keep from speaking wrong; for she saw by this time how it would have seemed to her to find ten dollars, and use it without searching for the loser. The tears came into her eyes, and her courage sank.

"If he did not lose it, shall you keep it until you die, and never use it?" she asked, her voice trembling.

"Oh, Cathie!" said Oscar, almost breaking down. "Don't care so much about it. You are so anxious for me to have the books, you—you can't see it quite right, Cathie."

Cathie went home with a breaking heart.

On his next trip, the drover was accosted by the boy:

"Did you lose any money, sir, the last time you went down?"

"No, my boy," said the kindly, talkative drover, "none excepting what I paid for damages. I paid the little girl up yonder ten dollars for spoilin' her pretty flower garden. That was a hard one for the poor child. I wonder how she feels about it?"

"She has tried to mend it up some," said Oscar, in a daze. "I—I found a bill. I thought, perhaps, you dropped it."

"No, I've lost none," said the man, driving away.

Oscar's mind was swift and keen. The first thought that had flashed through it was, "How strange that Cathie did not tell me about the money!" For he knew the sum would have seemed a little fortune to her. The next instant, he saw it all. Her eagerness to have him use this money, her flushed appearance the day he found it, the look on her face when he mentioned the drover as the one who might have lost it, and her grief when he had reproved her for her generous earnestness. He bowed his head, and the hot tears fell from his eyes as it all came over him. He put himself in her place, and saw that he must not spoil the delicate sacrifice she had striven so hard to offer unblemished.

"It was not the drover who lost it, Cathie," he said, quite calmly, the next day. "I have given up trying any further. I shall get my books, and when I am a man"—his voice shook a little—"who knows but I may find the loser and let him know how much good the money did me?"

Cathie's eyes shone like stars. She clasped her hands as she had done when he found the money.

"Oh, Oscar! how glad I am!" was all she said.

He bought the precious books and reverenced them tenfold, for Cathie's sake.

The lame scholar had become an eminent naturalist, and Cathie had been his wife a year, before he told her the secret he had kept sacred so long.

And Cathie tells her own little daughter to-day that once, at least, in everybody's life something happens "just like a story."—St. Nicholas.

Upper Rooms as Ovens.

In the construction of perhaps nine out of ten of frame houses, and oftentimes of brick, no adequate provision, if any, is made for ventilating the space between the upper ceiling and the roof. How frequently at night the remark is made: "The lower rooms are getting quite comfortable, but the upper rooms are like an oven." "The roof gets so heated up during the day." Seldom is the real cause of the oppressive heat that prevails till late in the night, or till well on toward morning, either understood or thought of. It is true the roof gets hot during the day, but it usually consists of but a layer of strips and shingles, and would soon cool if it had a chance. The trouble is there is a body of confined air under the roof that gets very hot, and as there is no outlet for its escape and replacement it must remain hot until cooled by the slow process of radiation through the surrounding walls.

Now, the roof being usually of wood is not so good a conductor as the plastered walls of the ceiling, hence the heat must pass out principally from below through the rooms of the house. That accounts for the fact that when one goes to an upper room in the evening there comes such a sense of stifling, and the sweat starts from the forehead. It is an oven you are in; all that is lacking to make it complete is the hot air chamber below as well as above. The builder who constructs a house with such nicely adjusted conditions for the radiation of stored-up heat, might most properly be called Macbeth, for he has certainly "murdered sleep." When the writer was a boy it was his good fortune to sleep in the chamber of a house unfinished above. There was nothing but the roof over him and the room became cool not long after the cooling of the outside air. It was a good place to sleep winter or summer.

Only those who have slept just under the shingles can realize what it is to "listen to the patter of the rain upon the roof." Very often in steep-roofed and low-eaved houses a part of the room along by the eaves above is walled out, leaving a space for confined air on two sides as well as above. The sides, too, are connected with the spaces between weather boarding and walls, reaching to the sills. It will readily appear, therefore, what an advantage would be gained both in preventing and reducing excessive heat by having a free circulation of air through these spaces. The provisions sometimes made for this ventilation are insufficient. A few open slats under the roof in the gable are better than nothing, but there is no good reason why there should not be at least two good large openings. An arrangement could easily be made so that shutters should be under control from below by means of a cord or wire, remaining open day and night during hot weather, except when storms might threaten. They might be made to assist greatly in cooling and ventilating the whole house.—Dr. Newkirk, in N. Y. Tribune.

—An Italian farmers' hired man having bought seven donkeys at the fair, mounted one and drove all the rest home. Before dismounting he counted them and could find only six. He immediately retraced his steps and drove about everywhere asking every one if they had seen a stray donkey, until he tired his animal out so badly that it refused to budge and he had to get off. As he did so he noticed the donkey and exclaimed, "What a fool I am; I've been riding that lost donkey all this while."

STATEMENT UNDER OATH.

A Startling Revelation of Suffering!

"Oh, My God, How I Did Suffer!"

"I Earnestly Prayed to Die!"

"I have been afflicted for twenty years with an obstinate skin disease, called by some M. D.'s Psoriasis, and others Leprosy, commencing on my scalp, and, in spite of all I could do, with the help of the most skilful doctors, it slowly but surely extended, until a year ago this winter it covered my entire person in form of dry scales. For the last three years I have been unable to do any labor, and suffering intensely all the time. Every morning there could be nearly a cheekpanful of scales taken from the sheet on my bed, some of them half as large as the envelope containing this letter. In the latter part of winter my skin commenced cracking open. I tried everything, almost, that could be thought of, without any relief. The 12th of June I started West, in hopes I could reach the Hot Springs. I reached Detroit, and was so low I thought I should have to go to the hospital, but finally got as far as Lansing, Mich., where I had a sister living. One D. —— treated me about two weeks, but did me no good. All thought I had but a short time to live. I earnestly prayed to die. Cracked through the skin all over my back, across my ribs, arms, hands, limbs, feet badly swollen, toe nails came off, finger-nails dead and hard as bone, hair dead, dry and lifeless as old straw. O, my God! how I did suffer.

"My sister, Mrs. E. H. Davis, had a small part of a box of Cuticura in the house. She would n't give up; said 'We will try Cuticura.' Some was applied on one hand and arm. Rarely ever was relief; stopped the terrible burning sensation from the word go. They immediately got the Resolvent, Cuticura and Soap. I commenced by taking one tablespoonful of Resolvent three times a day, after meals; had a bath once a day, water about blood heat; used Cuticura Soap freely; applied Cuticura morning and evening. Result, returned to my home in just six weeks from time I left, and my skin as smooth as this sheet of paper."

D. 1880, in favor of the above named plaintiff and against the above named defendants, I shall offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder, on the sidewalk in front of the post-office, on West Milwaukee street, in the city of Janesville, in said county,

On the 12th day of September, A. D. 1881, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, the following real estate lying and being in the city of Janesville, county of Rock and State of Wisconsin, and known and described as follows: Being in the northeast quarter of section twenty-five, town three north of range twelve east, and lying between Benton Avenue and St. Mary's Avenue in the said city of Janesville, and bounded as follows: On the north by the lands of Catharine Molady, R. Murphy, R. Downs and Benton Avenue; on the east by the lands of R. Downs, M. L. Richardson, or his wife, on the south by St. Mary's avenue, on the west, by the lands of Catharine Molady and J. B. Crosby, containing about eight acres and three quarters of an acre, being the premises now owned and occupied by the said Bridget Mary Rose, excepting and reserving therefrom a quarter of an acre of land upon which the dwelling house and barn and other buildings on said premises are situate, the said quarter of an acre being the homestead of said Bridget Mary Rose, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment with interest and costs of sale, and as may be sold separately without material injury to the parties in interest.

Dated July 25th, A. D. 1881.

The Two Graves in Poker Valley.

"It was the curiousest thing that ever happened in the diggins," said the old man, as he slowly filled his pipe. "Nigh onto twenty years ago was about the date, an' a hundred or so of us miners had squatted in Poker Valley. It wasn't much of a valley, an' thar' wasn't any too much poker, an' I know I put in six months o' hard work in that 'ere hole an' didn't cl'ar fifty cents a day. Howsumever, that haint nuthin' to do with the story I sot out to tell, though it serves to explain why we were all out o' temper one arternoon, when a stranger entered Poker Valley by the west trail an' brought his skinny an' foot-sore mule to a halt in the center of our town. It war' airly in the fall, an' the weather was downright mean. It had bin drizzlin' all day long, an' we had cussed an' sulked an' loafed around till every man was ready to answer a word with a blow.

"The minit that stranger rode up we all rushed out to see who he was an' what he wanted. He was a light-weight chap, muffled up to the ears to keep dry, and we couldn't say what he could do with a pick-ax or how he'd back a friend in a fight. He didn't offer to git down from his mule, but began to inquar' arter a chap whom we called Sweet William. This William was a candy sort o' man. He seemed a bit pious, had a soft voice, never cussed nor drank whisky, an' we didn't 'zactly mate with him. Ten days afore this stranger rode up Sweet William got out o' his blankets at midnight, either asleep or in trouble, an' the poor cuss took a walk over a bit o' cliff about fifty feet high, with a lot o' jagged rocks to light on down below. We didn't take on very much, as he had no partner an' wasn't one o' us, as I menshuned before, but we gin him a decent burial an' sold his traps on the squar' to the highest bidder.

"Waal, now, that stranger was goin' on to ax about William, an' I was a-sayin' to myself that he had the softest voice of any man in the diggins, when sunthin happened. Ole Kentucky Bill an' Deacon Joe had bin growlin' at each other for an hour or so, kinder achin' fur a row, an' at length they went at it. Ole Kentuck gin Joe a lifter on the jaw, an' Joe he out with his popper an' fired Kentuck to kingdom come. No, he didn't, either. The bullet cut away a lock of hair and did its bloody work beyond. The stranger on the mule got it plump thro' the heart, and he was dead afore he fell into my arms. Ha! No, stranger—'twas a woman! Sure's you're born, it was a woman not over twenty-five years old, and with a face as purty as a thousand-dollar nugget. She was dressed sort o' man fashion, an' she was bravin' Injuns, b'ars, storms, and everything else fur an' object. What was it? Waal, I dunno. Was Sweet William her lover or her husband? Had he run away from her, or had he cum thar to make a stake? Must have bin some powerful motive to have sent that gal on sich a trip, an' we talked it over an' kinder concluded it was love, an' nuthin' else.

"'Twas a terrible dead, anyhow, an' I never think of it without feelin' my heart grow big and my throat choke up. When we diskivered that she was a woman we sot around thar like pegs for about half an hour. Then we riz up an' kicked them two fighters outer camp and dug a grave 'longside o' Sweet William's fur the poor dead gal, an' they sleep thar to this day. Rough and cussed as we war in Poker Valley, we had tears in our eyes as we put that poor gal away, an' I seed more'n one old grizzly drop his chin when the Alabama elder stood at the head of the graves an' said:

"'The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. May they be jined together in heaven.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A Railway President's Private Car.

The following is a description of the new private car just completed at Altoona, Pa., for President McKeen, of the Vandalia:

The interior is finished with ash, varnished and rubbed down until the glitter of the varnish is lost in the plain color of the hard wood. This finish gives the walls and roof and furniture—everything in ash—a very tidy appearance. Nothing could look cleaner. The parlor, in the rear end, contains six arm-chairs, a secretary and an extension table. The next room, a sleeping and dining-room, contains eight berths. The lower seats run lengthwise, making sitting accommodations for each side of the table. Going forward, next in order, and very conveniently hunched, are the heater, a closet, wash-stand and linen closet. Over these, supported by the various partitions round and about them, is a sixty-gallon roof tank for water. The tank is out of sight. Its existence would not be surmised, except by inquiry as to where the water came from. Next, on the right, is a private bed-room, with wash-stand and closet, and bed across the car. From the bed and from the parlor, by means of a cord, the occupant of the car may put on the air-brakes and stop the train. From two places in this room, and from eight other places in the car, electric signals communicate with the kitchen in front. The kitchen is supplied with a chip stove and sheet-iron compartment up the pipe for keeping food warm, with a coal-box, sink, drawers, cupboard, ice-chest, and upper berth for a porter. An extra mattress, to be laid on the ice-chest, makes sleeping room for an extra porter. The lamps and heaters are the same that are found in Pullman cars.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Henry James, Jr., is thirty-eight years of age.

—Mark Twain is spending the summer at Indian Neck, Conn.

—The poet Tupper is seventy-one years old. He is genial, and he says of his enemies that they are not worth answering.

—The poet Longfellow is suffering from the effects of a cancer, which was recently removed from his nose by Dr. Greene.

—Prof. Goldie, of Princeton College, is an expert bicyclist, and may be seen almost any afternoon going at a rattling rate along the streets.

—Mr. Emerson is described as looking full of a sweet serenity, a beautiful calm; he does not look broken, though his tall figure is slightly bent.

—Miss Anna Dickinson has decided to make another attempt to enter the dramatic profession, and London will probably witness her next appearance on the stage.

—Dr. Wm. M. Baker, the novelist, whose last book is "Blessed Saint Certainty," has removed from Boston to Philadelphia, and taken charge of a Presbyterian Church in that city.

—Mr. Henry G. Vennor, the Canadian weather prophet, is forty-one years of age. He is a professor in the University of Montreal and the author of a book entitled "Our Birds of Prey."

—Theodore Benfey, who was the greatest Sanskrit scholar of the time, lately died at Gottingen, where he was a professor in the university. In order to give an idea of the minuteness of his studies, it may be mentioned that his treatises on the single question of the prolongation of vowels in the Rig-Veda occupy more than 400 pages quarto.

—M. Munkacsy, the Hungarian painter, has just declined to take less than $160,000 for his new picture of "Christ Before Pilate." It is not so long ago that this brilliant and now wealthy artist was a cabinetmaker's apprentice, and was thankful to earn small sums in his leisure hours by painting flowers upon the furniture of the peasant farmers of his native town.

—Miss Blanche Howard, author of "One Summer," is on her way home from Europe, where she has been for two years. The romantic little story is told of her book that it is the true history of herself and lover; they not being able to go to Europe on a wedding trip, she secretly wrote the book and earned the money, but her lover was so angry that she had embodied their little romance in prose that he broke the engagement, and she went to Europe alone.

"Tell us what you think he meant." "Oh, go along! Why didn't you go and hear him yourself?"—Boston Transcript.

A Revolution in Cooking and Heating.

Will wonders never cease? Mankind has used boiling water for cooking purposes since long before the invention of letters, yet during these countless ages the race never knew the possibilities of hot water. An inventor named Prall has found out that, by superheating water, that is, by raising it to a temperature of four hundred degrees to four hundred and twenty-five degrees Fahrenheit, that it can be used for cooking and heating with greater advantage than any other kind of heat. By the new system dinners can be cooked in a room where there is no perceptible heat from the apparatus. In several restaurants of New York meats and poultry are roasted, broiled, stewed and boiled from heat given out by the superheated water on the Prall system, and this with a perfection and economy unknown to any other species of cooking. The Common Council of New York have granted a permit to allow the company who own the patent to introduce this superheated water into houses. Next fall a square mile will be taken up, and the water will be supplied from a central building to the private houses that need it. But note the changes it will bring about. No fires will be needed, for the house will be warmed by hot water. There will be a range, but the heat will be supplied through a coil of pipes. Chimneys will not be used; there will be no soot, and no danger from catching fire. The house of the future, with electric lights at night, will not need insurance, for there will be no way in which it can catch fire except from outside. This Prall system of heating and cooking is not an experiment. It has been tested, and fulfills all the requirements. It will be particularly valuable to hotels and large apartment houses; but it will be an economy and a comfort as well in the tenement house, for there will be no need of coal-bins or the dragging up of scuttles of coal to the upper stories. The business of the ash-cart man will be gone. How surprisingly stupid mankind has been not to discover the possibilities of hot water before the year 1881!—Demorest's Monthly.

How to Secure Health.

It seems strange that any one will suffer from the many derangements brought on by an impure condition of the blood, when SCOVILL'S SARSAPARILLA AND STILLINGIA, or BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP, will restore perfect health to the physical organization. It is indeed a strengthening syrup, pleasant to take, and has proven itself to be the BEST BLOOD PURIFIER ever discovered, effectually curing Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, Weakness of the Kidneys, Erysipelas, Malaria; all Nervous disorders and Debility, Bilious complaints and all Diseases indicating an Impure Condition of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, Skin, etc. It corrects Indigestion. A single bottle will prove to you its merits as a health renewer, for it ACTS LIKE A CHARM, especially when the complaint is of an exhaustive nature, having a tendency to lessen the natural vigor of the brain and nervous system.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures Pain in Man and Beast. For use externally and internally.

CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN R'Y

Is by all odds the best road for you to take when traveling in either direction between Chicago and all of the Principal Points in the West, North and Northwest.

Carefully examine this Map. The Principal Cities of the West and Northwest are Stations on this road. Its through trains make close connections with the trains of all railroads at junction points.

THE CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY,

Over all of its principal lines, runs each way daily from two to four or more Fast Express Trains. It is the only road west of Chicago that uses the PULLMAN HOTEL DINING CARS.

It is the only road that runs Pullman Sleeping Cars North or Northwest of Chicago. It has nearly 3,000 MILES OF ROAD. It forms the following Trunk Lines:

"Council Bluffs, Denver & California Line." "Winona, Minnesota & Central Dakota Line."
"Sioux City, Nor. Nebraska & Yankton Line." "Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis Line.
"Nor. Illinois, Freeport & Dubuque Line." "Milwaukee, Green Bay & Lake Superior Line."

Tickets over this road are sold by all Coupon Ticket Agents in the United States and Canadas.

Remember to ask for Tickets via this road, be sure they read over it, and take none other.

YOU CAN TRAVEL 4000 MILES

THROUGH

ILLINOIS, WISCONSIN, IOWA, MINNESOTA and DAKOTA,

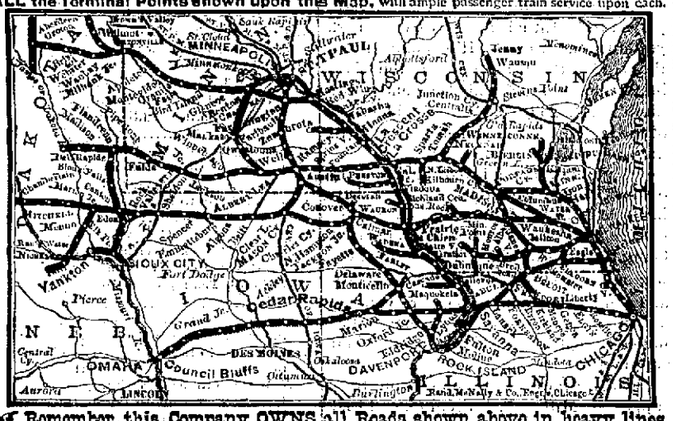
OVER THE ROADS OF THE

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & St. PAUL R'Y CO.,

Without doubling on your tracks. This magnificent system reaches almost every important TOWN, CITY and SUMMER RESORT in the GREAT NORTHWEST. It includes the only Through unbroken lines owned by any one Company, Between Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and forms with its connections the picturesque

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ROUTE,

Between St. Louis and Northern Minneapolis. It also includes Through Routes between ALL the Terminal Points shown upon this Map, with ample passenger train service upon each.



Remember, this Company OWNS all Roads shown above in heavy lines.

Reference to the Official Railway Guides or the Time Tables published by the Company, will show that the C., M. & St. P. can take you in its Splendid Passenger Trains, at Express Speed, over its own Superb Tracks, FROM almost anywhere TO almost anywhere in the Five Great States named above.

ITS ROAD-BED, SUPERSTRUCTURE and EQUIPMENTS COMBINE ALL MODERN IMROVEMENTS, AND ARE PERFECT IN EVERY PARTICULAR

It runs its own MAGNIFICENT SLEEPERS upon all Through Trains, and its own PARLOR CARS—the finest in the world.

Its RAILROAD HOTELS and DINING HALLS are noted for their superior excellence.

While it connects the prominent Business Centres of the Northwest, it has also upon its lines more Health and Pleasure Resorts and greater Scenic Attractions than any other system of roads upon the continent. Its Magnificent New Union Depot, on Madison, Canal and Adams Streets, Chicago, is the most elegant and commodious Passenger Station in the United States.

It is conceded by the Traveling Public, to be in all things, THE LEADING LINE.

DR. PRICE'S REPUTATION!

Has been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not fear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic Diseases exclusively, no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call and investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for yourselves; it will cost nothing as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

BRIEFLETS.

—Picnic day.

—The municipal paternals congregate this evening.

—St. Patrick's church folk are having a good time in Wheeler's grove to-day.

—The First Methodist church folk are picnicking at Pope's Springs to-day.

—A fellow don't have to get very seasick before he feels willing to throw up the sponge.

—A number of residents of the Second ward are joining in a picnic in Kinney's grove this afternoon.

—The Central Wisconsin and Mechanical association will hold their fair at Watertown September 19th to 23d.

—Arrangements are being made to have a telephone line running from the city to the Fair grounds during the fair week.

—The Circuit Court at Jefferson, opens its term on the first Monday in September. The District Attorney says he expects the Mack case will be tried at this term again.

—The friends of Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Stowe, late of this city, will be saddened at learning of the death of Mrs. Stowe's mother, Mrs. Bond, who died in Buffalo at the age of 67 years.

—The long-looked for timbers for Court street bridge, the non-arrival of which has greatly delayed the work, have at last reached here, and there is now the promise of a speedy completion of the structure.

—Mrs. E. H. Davies and her daughter, Miss Ida, are preparing to have a large reception of friends at their home on Academy street, on Wednesday of next week. Over three hundred invitations have been issued.

—The following is the committee of the Carpenter Memorial association for Rock county: C. G. Williams, R. L. Colvin, H. Richardson, W. F. Tousley, Janesville; H. P. Strong, S. T. Merrill, Beloit; I. M. Bennett, Evansville; F. B. Ames, Clinton.

—Mr. O. Fritz, who has just been doing some excellent work on the Goodwin house, Beloit, has returned to this city, and will remain here some time. He is now retouching the frescoing at the Myers house, and will soon commence work on Myers' new block and the Guards' armory.

—A picked nine is alleged to have played the Mutuals at the driving park yesterday afternoon. It is claimed that the score at the beginning of the sixth inning stood 13 to 0, and at the end of the ninth inning 26 to 0. In consideration of the feelings of the picked nine we will not state which had the 26.

—A number of copies of the History of Rock County were disposed of at sheriff's sale in front of the postoffice this morning, at one dollar per volume, that being the highest bid. There are many who subscribed for this work in this city and county who paid $8.50 per volume. That they should now sell at one dollar indicates that the market is pretty well supplied.

—The Monroe accommodation took supper at Milton last evening, and that is to be the regular eating place now. L. S. Borden, who has fitted up a very neat and attractive hotel close to the track, served supper to about forty last evening, furnishing a meal which satisfied all. He has every needed accommodation for the traveling public, and is determined to please all.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last night stood at 81 degrees above; at 1 o'clock A. M. to-day at 63 degrees above; at 7 o'clock A. M. at 63 degrees above; and at 1 o'clock P. M. at 80 degrees above. Cloudy.

The indications to-day are, fair weather, light variable winds, mostly southerly, stationary temperature, and stationary or lower pressure.

PERSONAL.

—Fred Jones, of Topeka, Ka., is in the city, visiting friends

—Milo Curtis, Esq., started to-day for Minnesota, for a brief stay.

—Will Hollister, of the Richland Democrat, is in the city greeting his old friends.

—Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. J. D. King's mother, and Miss Mae Shelton have returned from Dakota.

—Miss Mamie Roberts, of Milwaukee, is in the city, a guest in the family of Thomas Lappin.

—Dr. Q. O. Sutherland is able to be be out again, though he has not regained his full strength.

—Thomas Lappin has received plate glass for the fronts of the stores in his block occupied by W. G. Wheelock and Smith & Bostwick.

—Assistant Superintendent James Mc Cabe, of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, arrived in the city last evening, in company with his wife, and left this afternoon for Baraboo.

—The news comes from Evansville that Rev. and Mrs. Henry Faville have two boys now. The new comer is very young now, but bids fair to grow, and a happy home is made still happier.

—Ex-Governor Pease, of Texas, brother of Hon. J. J. R. Pease, of this city, with whom he has been visiting for several days, will leave for the East to-morrow accompanied by Mrs. Hamilton Richardson.

—Jennison Richardson, of the Davenport Democrat, is spending a few days on his farm in Spring Valley. He is as enterprising a stock man, as he is in the newspaper work, and has some very fine stock indeed, including some choice Jerseys, over which breed he is decidedly enthusiastic.

—E. M. Barton, of Chicago, secretary and treasurer of the Northwestern Electric Telegraph Manufacturing company, arrived in the city to-day, for a brief visit with his uncle T. A. Sayles, Esq. Mr. Barton was accompanied by his wife and sister, and the trio are travelling in a novel way, having come all the way from Chicago on horseback, by easy stages, stopping at various points of interest, and visiting friends along the route. They spent some days at Geneva Lake, and to-day rode from Clinton here. They are nicely equipped for such a journey, and have very fine horses. The party report the trip thus far a highly enjoyable one, and one which has given them a healthful and strengthening recreation. It is not often in these days that ladies especially, take such long journeys on horseback, but the trip seems to have been enjoyed by them hugely. After spending a short time with their friends here they will proceed homeward on horseback also.

Cured of Drinking.

"A young friend of mine was cured of an insatiable thirst for liquor, which had so prostrated him that he was unable to do any business. He was entirely cured by the use of Hop Bitters. It allayed all that burning thirst; it took away the appetite for liquor; made his nerves steady, and he has remained a sober and steady man for more than two years, and has no desire to return to his cups. I know of a number of others that have been cured of drinking by it."—From a leading R. R. Official, Chicago, Ill.

BAND CONCERTS.

The concert given by the Bower City band in the Court house park last evening proved an enjoyable one and drew together a goodly number of people. These concerts are proving a happy addition to the attractive features of life in Janesville, but financially they do not seem to be supported as they ought. Ald. Conrad, who has spent so much time, thought and labor in the improvement of the park, conceived the idea that it would be a grand thing to have some open air concerts which could be attended by rich and poor, and would furnish a healthful recreation to all alike, and which those who could not afford to contribute could enjoy freely and fully. There has been for several seasons a cry for such out-door concerts, and as no one seemed ready to shoulder the responsibility, Ald. Conrad concluded to do so, and engaging the band at a low figure, paid them in cash for a series of concerts. In order to get back at least a portion of the outlay, he concluded to rent seats at only a dime each, so that those who chose, could enjoy the concert without being wearied by standing.

The public did not take kindly to the rent plan. Only a few were occupied, and the receipts were not enough to pay for the trouble of looking after them. Not only has this small support of the enterprise been withheld, but some of those wonderfully shrewd souls, who always think they see some selfish motive, hinted that it was a money making scheme. None of these seem willing, however, to take the enterprise off Mr. Conrad's hands, and take the profits and losses themselves, and so the burden has fallen entirely upon him. Becoming tired of fussing about for two or three dollars a night, the concert last evening, seats and all were made free. Mr. Conrad is now building a platform 32 by 60 feet near the bandstand, and on Friday evening purposes to give a dance and promenade concert, which will give the public one more chance to show whether they appreciate these park entertainments enough to help bear some portion of the necessary expense. Ald. Conrad certainly merits much praise for the public spirit and enterprise shown by him, and the public ought to rally about him and support these entertainments, or else forever hush the long continued cry for park concerts.

It seems to many a mistake that the band house was placed on the hill, instead of near the fountain, and this doubtless prevents many from attending the concerts, but those who have contributed of their money were surely the ones whose opinions should govern in locating the band house, and they have so decided. The location has no doubt something to do with the lack of hearty support of the concerts, but aside from this there has been thus far a showing of indifference and lethargy on the part of the public, which is not very consistent with the long continued call for music in the park. It is to be hoped, now that the public cannot but understand the situation, that there will be more public spirit and generosity manifested.

It is expected that at some time in the near future two of the series of open air concerts will be given by the Band at Corn Exchange park, in order to give the residents of that part of the city a more convenient chance, which will be a courtesy which ought to be and doubtless will be appreciated greatly.

THE ONLY absolute specific we know of for sneezing, snuffling and choking catarrh or head colds is Sanford's Radical Cure, which for the small sum of $1 affords instant relief and invariably cures.—Medical Times.

MILTON.

—Coal is now selling at the yard in this village for cash at $7.75 per ton for chestnut, and $7.85 for range.

—The Borden house had thirty for supper on Monday night from the passenger train alone. A good send-off for the first night, we take it.

—Anderson's new elevator will be completed this week, and he will then be able to handle grain with more ease.

—The Milton Club of young people conduct themselves with great propriety. They occupy two large tents, brought with them a cook, and appointed Mr. J. Mills as business manager and Miss Dell Burdick as treasurer, who also acts as steward. Last Sunday they had 29 at their table, and they are a social power at Russell's.—Lake Geneva Cisco.

—Philip Marquart is now a citizen of this village, having moved his family into town this week. John Spaulding, of Harmony, will move into his recent purchase on the south side this week. Glad to see them come, for they are good neighbors, and our village needs all such good citizens as Messrs. Marquart and Spaulding.

SHOPIERE.

—Miss May and Miss Lula Parker are spending a few day visiting friends in Beloit.

—Rev. E. L. Dresser has returned from his vacation trip in Iowa looking well and happy.

—Frank Werrick is quite sick with conjestion of the liver.

—The sound of the carpenter's hammer has not been heard in our village so lively as at the present for a long time. Dr. Munley's house looms up above the rest of us. The next cyclone will be sure to catch him.

—A. H. Loucks is putting up another new barn and in the right place this time.

—Fred Rice, of snow-plow fame, is in town.

—Miss Bessie Cox and her two sisters are being entertained by their old schoolmates.

—Rev. J. M. Barkley, of the Wickley street Presbyterian church, Newark, N. J., an old classmate of Rev. E. L. Dressers, in Princeton college, occupied the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday morning, and of the Methodist church in the evening. Mr. Barkley is a fine speaker, and two better sermons are seldom heard in this village, than were given by him last Sunday.
